As of January 12, there is one (1) property for sale and one (1) more that is in escrow.

College Acres has recovered from the downturn and is finally seeing the return of million dollar sales!

Who are Likely Buyers Here in 2015?

- Move-up buyers: those seeking to upgrade to larger homes and/or better neighborhoods.
- Investors: Investors, especially those who buy to rent-and-hold, will continue to grow in numbers as they realize housing is the best risk-adjusted return on their money. Flippers are still looking for bargains but are finding it more difficult to compete in the current market that favors owners who are selling to buyers wanting to remodel.
- Relocating buyers: buyers moving from out-of-area to new jobs.
- Boomerang buyers: Foreclosed homeowners, who are currently renting, will come back to repurchase.

Why Bigger Down-Payments Pay Off in the Long-Term

1. You're more likely to be approved

The smaller your loan, the more likely you are to be approved. Larger down payments are often considered signs of a strong borrower, and guarantee the lender less risk with the loan.

2. You'll have a lower interest rate

Due to the lower risk, lenders usually offer lower interest rates for borrowers with a higher down payment and lower loan-to-value ratio. This lower interest rate will save you money in the long run, so why not "invest" your money now?

3. You'll be mortgage free, sooner than later

Facing less debt and lower mortgage payments, you'll be able to pay off your mortgage in its entirety in less time, especially if you just put the money you save towards extra principal payments.

4. You won't need mortgage insurance

Most lenders protect themselves by requiring private mortgage insurance (PMI) on loans with less than a 20% down.

5. You'll be protected from negative equity

With a larger down payment and a greater percentage of your home paid off, you're more protected from price decline pushing you into negative equity..

Home Selling Tip for January:

Curbside Appeal - despite the Cold

If you're selling your home, remember that curbside appeal is the first impression buyers have. January and February are the best times to re-seed your lawn and to prune your rose bushes.
